PRICE ONE CENT.

SECOND GIFT
BY CARNEGIE.

Cooper Union Gets $300,- 000 More from the Ironmaster.

A TOTAL OF $600,000.

Money Will Enable the Institution to Occupy Nearly All Its Building.

Andrew Carnegie has, within the last few days, given $300,000 to Cooper Union. This is Mr. Carnegie's second gift to the institution, the first one being of a like amount.

The income which will be derived from this gift will, with what the institution already has, enable Cooper Union to occupy nearly all of its building. It will also admit of paying additional compensation to teachers. The physical laborer, however, will doubtless be enlarged so that in the coming year there will be increased facilities for instruction in electricity.

Abram S. Hewitt, who is Secretary of Cooper Union, said to-day:

"Cooper Union, like all such institutions, is greatly in need of money. Last year we expended $15,000 more than our income. The income of Mr. Carnegie's gift will permit us to make up that amount and give us a goodly sum in addition."

"There are more applications for admission to the classes than ever before. We now occupy practically all of the building. We have got the tenants out down to the store floor, two of the stores we took for our own use last year, and we will take two more during the coming year. Cooper Union could make use of double the amount of funds and income it now has."

Mr. Hewitt has been very active in the past year, and has done much to make Cooper Union one of the best organizations in the country for the practical instruction of workmen and artisans.

$60,000,000
FOR A YOUTH.

Marcellus Hartley Dodge Is the Lucky Recipient.

Young Heir Is Only Twenty Years Old and a Student at Columbia.

$60,000,000 for a boy of twenty!

This is what young Marcellus Hartley Dodge, a junior at Columbia University, will get under the will of his grandfather, the late Marcellus Hartley Dodge, if rumor is correct. It was at first thought that the millionaire sportsman had died intestate, but it was learned to-day that he left a will. This, it is said, leaves almost the entire Hartley fortune to young Dodge.

Instead of leaving an estate valued at about $10,000,000, as was figured at first, it is now thought that Mr. Hartley's holdings at the time of his death will amount to nearly a hundred million.

George W. Hebard, who was for twenty-five years associated in business with Mr. Hartley, and was his close personal friend, is named under the will as sole executor. Mr. Hebard this afternoon refused to confirm or deny that the Hartley estate would amount to such an enormous figure, or to say whether young Dodge would be the principal legatee. On good authority it is learned, however, that such is a fact.

Mr. Hartley had three daughters. One of them, Mrs. M. J. Dodge, another, James Stokes and the third, George W. Jenkins. None of these daughters is now living except Mrs. Jenkins, who has two children.

The dead millionaire laid the foundation of his fortune in the sporting goods trade. He was the founder and principal owner of the firm of M. Hartley & Co., of New York, which was founded in 1850. Mr. Hartley became interested in the Westinghouse Electric Company, and at one of the best organizations in the country for the practical instruction of workmen and artisans.

SHEPARD ON TAMMANY.

Reasons for the Failure of Crocker's Organization.

DEVEY A PRIME CAUSE.

Jerome Also Figured Largely in the Downfall—Anent
Mayor Low.

In the February Atlantic Edward M. Shepard will say that the public revolt against Devery threw down Tammany at the last election.

"It is certain," is an excerpt from Mr. Shepard's article, "that the power wielded by him (Devery) in the borough of Manhattan as practical head of police during the few months before election in 1901 aroused against himself and what was far more serious, against the party which, whether rightly or wrongly, was held responsible for his incumbency, a feeling of nearly a hundred years ago."

Of Mr. Jerome, Mr. Shepard says:

"At the last he became the hero or Prime Rupert of the campaign. Sounding the single note of a strict alliance between crime and police force under the Democratic administration, he addressed his appeal to the simplest and strongest sense of morality. He had the burning zeal of a true crusader."

"Crocker is held up by Mr. Shepard as a crude leader of the people, more sincere than otherwise, who kept his power because he was deserving of it."

CROWD PLEADS FOR ONE-BLOCK TUNNEL.

"For God's Sake Do Something!" Cries Father of Victim at the Aldermanic Hearing.

"For God's sake do something!" was the cry that startled the crowd which filled the Aldermanic Chamber this afternoon at the hearing by the Joint Committees on Railroads and Tunnels on the McInnes resolution requiring the New York Central Railroad to do away at once with the dangers of the tunnel by adopting The World's one-block plan.

It was the most dramatic incident of one of the most important public meetings ever held in the City Hall. Bruce Marsh, of New Rochelle, whose son was killed in the wreck of Jan. 8, made this stirring appeal after eloquent speakers had detailed the horrors of the tunnel and the danger that those who pass through it have daily to face.

The hearing was attended by delegations representing all the suburban towns whose citizens are in peril every day while coming to and going from the city. It was an enthusiastic gathering whose sentiments were voiced by Corporation Counsel Tierney of New Rochelle; Mr. Woods, President of the Mount Vernon Board of Trade, and others.

No voice was raised against The World's plan. Every one indorsed it as the only feasible method of making the tunnel safe at once.

When the arguments were concluded the committees adjourned subject to the call of Chairman Goodman. They will meet next week to consider their report on the plan to the Board of Aldermen.

The New York Central contented itself with sending a letter declaring the scheme impracticable.

While the public is demanding immediate safety in the tunnel, District-Attorney Jerome is preparing to ask the Grand Jury to indict President Newman, General Superintendent Franklin and Chief Engineer Wilgus, who are among the officials censured by the Coroner's jury which investigated the tunnel wreck.

PEOPLE FILL ALDERMANIC CHAMBER TO PROTEST AGAINST WRECK HORRORS.

Delegations from Mount Vernon, New Rochelle and other suburban towns early crowded into the gallery of the Aldermanic chambers until not a seat was left, to hear the arguments before the Joint Committee on Railroads and Bridges and Tunnels.

After that other crowds came. Soon there was a line of men for whom there were no seats along the rail of the gallery and back against the walls.

Every place where a man could stand was occupied.

Still there were others crowding to get in. Some of these were terribly in earnest. Perhaps there were those among them who were relatives or friends of victims of the tunnel accident.

Seeing the galleries were all too small, the employees of the Board of Aldermen finally opened the doors to the main floor of the chambers. The people then pushed in and filled all the seats not already occupied by

The Concor Towed to Vigo, Spain, in a Damaged Condition—
Commander Hurt.

VIGO, Spain, Jan. 25.—The obsolete Spanish gunboat Concor has been towed into this port in a damaged condition, due to the explosion of her boiler.

Four men were killed and nine others injured, including the commander of the vessel.

The gunboat is practically a wreck.

The Concor was built at Barcelona, in 1890. She is single-mast steel vessel, and has a displacement of 45 tons. Her length is 75 feet 9 inches, and her beam is 12 feet 10 inches. The armament of the Concor consists of one 15-inch gun and two machine guns.

BABY UNVEILS TABLET.

In Memory of Anneke Jans, "Most Famous New Amsterdam Woman."

A tablet in the wall of 23 Whitehall street marking the place where Anneke Jans lived in the seventeenth century was unveiled this afternoon, in the auspices of the Knickerbocker Chapter of the D. A. R.

The tablet says:

On this spot
lived Anneke Jans, wife of
Rev. Everardus Bogardus, and the most famous woman
in New Amsterdam, 1625.
Engraved by Knickerbocker Chapter,
N. Y. C. D. A., Jan. 25, 1902.

The actual unveiling, the pulling aside of the flag that concealed the tablet, was done by Inna Palmer Lyon, the baby son of Capt. Palmer Lyon, and the youngest descendant of Anneke Jans.

Prisoner Weeps Penitently and Promises Never Again to Commit the Heinous Crime.

John Koepfel, of No. 24 Bushwick avenue, expectorated in Hamburg street, No. 224, last night. This morning he was presented before Magistrate Watson in the Gates Avenue court on the charge of violating Section 194 of the Sanitary Code. The complaint was John Griffin, of the tenement-house squad. Koepfel looked to be frightened half to death.

"How many times did he spit?" asked the Magistrate of the officer.

"Once," replied Griffin.

"And you nabbed him?"

"Yes, Your Honor."

Koepfel pleaded guilty. He was a big, innocent looking young fellow. His tears rolled down his face.

"What are you crying about?" asked the Magistrate. "The idea, I suppose, added the Magistrate, addressing the charge of spitting, is that you won't dare to breathe again when he gets out for fear of being arrested."

The Magistrate, turning to Koepfel, withdrew your plea of guilty. Plead not guilty."

"Now then, you won't do it again, Koepfel—you couldn't help it?"

"No, sir."

"The case is dismissed," concluded the Magistrate. "No reflections on you, officer. Next time you want to spit, Koepfel, take a hitch in your trousers and shuffle out to the back gunwale of the car. Go home."

THIS DANCE HIS HOTTEST.

Wife No. 1 Has Dancing Master Ar-

George Koch, a dancing master, who lives at No. 224 West Twenty-fifth street, Manhattan, was arraigned in the Myrtle Avenue Court, Brooklyn, to-day, on a charge of abandonment of his first wife, Florence, who was the daughter of Daniel Downey, a Custom-House inspector.

Mrs. Koch No. 1 says that in May, 1898 her husband went to Dakota secured a divorce and married Henrietta Lowrey, formerly of No. 723 Gates avenue. Koch, through his second wife back to town, and wife No. 1 soon learned of his whereabouts.

He was held in $500 bail for trial.

BELIEVED NOTES GOOD.

Stern Tried for Passing Bank of England Counterfeits.

Jacob Stern, the house painter, arrested on Wednesday while attempting to pass 155 counterfeit Bank of England notes, was granted a preliminary examination before United States Commissioner Livingston to-day. His arraignment was taken until next Thursday. In order to present evidence that Stern knew the money was counterfeit.

Stern says he came here four weeks ago as a stowaway, found his way to a rooming house in Bowling Green and believed them to be good.

A representative of Gutaine, Cravath & Henderson, counsel of the Bank of England in America, was present during the examination and said the counterfeits were wonderfully well executed.

SMALL-POX CLOSES SCHOOL.

One of the Scholars in a Brooklyn
School Has the Disease.

Public School No. 71, in Heyward street, has been closed on account of small-pox, making the third to be shut up in Brooklyn Borough since Monday.

Miss McLaughlin, the principal, learned that three of her scholars, living in a flat-house in Nostrand avenue, had the disease and dismissed the school on her own responsibility.

The building will be fumigated to-day.

SIX YEARS' TERM
FOR A MAN OF 75.

JUSTICE KENEFICK SEN-TENCES AGED GAGLIARDO.

Receives Many Letters Regarding Arthur Edminister and Postpones Action.

Justice Kenefick in the Supreme Court this morning had three convicted murderers before him for sentence.

The first was Arthur Edminister, the Brooklyn youth who stabbed his colored common-law wife, Louisa Jones, to death in her room on No. 66 Seventh avenue on Aug. 14. Lawyer Levy presented 136 letters to the Justice from the inmates of the Fourteenth Regiment and others in Brooklyn, besides a petition signed by several hundred persons. Justice Kenefick postponed sentence for a week, saying that while he thought he knew what was best for the young man he considered it his duty to read the letters and petition.

The second man was seventy-five-year-old Nicola Gagliardo, who killed Frank Rubino at No. 31 Mulberry street on July 31 in a quarrel following Rubino's threat to kill the Queen of Italy. Gagliardo was very sick and could not stand up in court. He was sentenced to six years and six months.

Henry Beckerman, the Virginian who shot William Fletcher in a saloon quarter in the Adams House, at West and Prince streets, last summer, was sentenced to five years and two months. Beckerman gave himself up when he learned of Fletcher's death, and waived trial, pleading guilty.

Basket Ball "Players" of Newark
All Well Connected, Held for Grand Jury.

(Special to The Evening World.)
NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 25.—Six young men, sons of leading merchants of Newark, who went to Asbury Park, N. J., yesterday night to play a game of basket ball, after which, as charged, they made the Parker House look as if a cyclone had struck it, were all arrested in this city to-day. Their little frolic has now taken a serious turn.

The Chief of Police of Asbury Park arrived here early, and with the assistance of Capt. Casagrove's detectives quickly arrested the accused, who are: Walter Barrett, nineteen years old, student, New Street; Edward J. Sullivan, nineteen, student, Clinton avenue; Walter F. O'Mara, nineteen, clerk, Warren place; John Cummings, twenty-one, bookkeeper, William street; Bertrand Prend, twenty-two, agent, South Twelfth street; and Peter C. Mullen, twenty-one, clerk, Washington street.

The story of the fracas had been hushed up and the arrests to-day caused a stir. Each pleaded not guilty, when arraigned in the First Precinct Police Court, and bail was fixed at $200 each, the prisoners to appear before the May month County Grand Jury at the May term.

Magistrate Mayo Then Discharged
Young Smallwood.

A young man attired in evening dress, who gave his name as De la Plaine Smallwood and said he lived at No. 723 Madison avenue, was a prisoner at Yorkville Court to-day on a charge of intoxication. He said he was twenty-three years old and that his father is William M. Smallwood, a Custom House broker at No. 66 Beaver street.

Polhemus Lambreck, of the East fifty-ninth street station, told Magistrate Mayo that he found young Smallwood flourishing a loaded revolver late last night on Fifth street.

"Judge," the young man said, "this will be a lesson to me."

"Then you may go this time," said the Judge, as he signed the discharge.

Accused of Liquor Selling He Refuses to Show His Order Book.

(Special to The Evening World.)
RIVERHEAD, L. I., Jan. 25.—In the examination held before Justice Fred A. Tuthill to-day, concerning the alleged violation of the liquor law, Samuel Sandman refused to answer certain questions put to him and was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and be confined in the County Jail for five days.

Sandman's counsel, Ex-Congressman Bedford and L. M. Griffin, will immediately apply for a writ of habeas corpus.

Justice Tuthill's methods have prompted criticism in this village, and many say that when they have an opportunity to vote on the liquor question again they will oppose the no license plan and work for a "wet town."

Justice Tuthill has been taking testimony in the Sandman case for several days, and the proceedings have been secret. Sandman, who is a grocer and was accused of selling liquor, was ordered to produce his order book to show where his customers were and if possible identify those who purchased the liquor. He refused.

ACCUSED WOMEN FREED.

Charge of Shoplifting Dropped by Department Store Detective.

Mrs. Margaret Thomas and Mrs. Neddy Stock, thirty-two and thirty-three years old, respectively and born giving Orange, N. J., as their residence, were arrested in a Sixth avenue department store yesterday on the charge of larceny. It is alleged that they valued at $250 was found on Mrs. Stock when she was searched.

Justice Tuthill Court to-day Story Detective Larkin stated that after questioning the women on the charge of larceny he had a further investigation and did not wish to press the complaint. Magistrate Tuthill ordered the prisoners to be released.

What caused the death of Mrs. Kuhn and wife, of Union Square, to part after a happy married life of more than thirty years, no one could ever find out. Kuhn went to live with his daughter and Mrs. Kuhn with her son.

Kuhn tried to get his wife to live with him again, but she refused, and last Wednesday he shot and killed himself. Mrs. Kuhn went into a passion of grief, and that night was found dead with a gas tube in her mouth.

They will be buried in different cemeteries to-morrow.

The children took sides in the quarrel, and there will undoubtedly be a contest over the big estate left by both parents.
